USER TEST CASE 1

Rohan, a college student, wants to buy a pair of wireless earphones for himself. He prefers boat earphones and won't buy any other company products. He does not have a specific model in mind. He wants to browse the available options and choose the best choice based on price, reviews and features. Help him find the best product and redirect him to the website that sells it.

USER TEST CASE 3

Gayatri, a middle-aged mother of two, wishes to buy a pair of cute dresses for her twin daughters to surprise them on their birthday. She has chosen the dresses, but she wants to wait for price drops or any “dhamaka” sales due to financial constraints before buying them. Help her streamline this process and find the best possible prices for her desired products.
